

Hong Kong schools raise money

After Nepal's devastating earthquakes, local schools have rallied to raise much-needed funds for the stricken country.

Woodland Pre-Schools went into overdrive to raise $241, 028 in support of educational charity, First Steps Himalaya.

The group's deputy general manager, Michel Sealy, says: "This tragedy is just awful. We know the 22 villages where the schools have suffered massive damage. I really believe in the work First Steps does in Nepal and I would like to call on other schools and organisations in Hong Kong to match our efforts to help First Steps Himalaya rebuild the classrooms and the shattered lives of these children and their families."

Meanwhile, parents, staff and students at ICHK Hong Lok Yuen joined forces for a fundraising initiative that raised more than $100,000 in just one day. The money raised by the Tai Po school will also help on the ground in Nepal to rebuild schools.
